

Build your practice with impact investing

Increasingly, clients expect their financial advisors to support their values as well as their financial goals. Roughly half of high-net-worth investors are interested in sustainable and impact investing and the portion of those that have acted on this interest has doubled over the past four years. These numbers are expected to grow even further as NextGen clients inherit wealth. The size of the impact investing market is growing rapidly and now exceeds $1 trillion.

Given these trends, advisors are motivated to deliver impact investing options to their clients. However, impact investing is complex, with unique, time-consuming challenges for advisor.
